Donors of magazines, current numbers: Woman's Journal, Our Dumb Animals, Century, St. Nicholas, County League Adviser, Christian Science Sentinel.

We have been much pleased with our gifts this year. Mr. Moore kindly donated a set of Encyclopedia Britannica covering thirty volumes; his mother gave a number of scientific works; from the Commission came the usual number, scattered through the year. A number of books for nature study were received during the Spring months.

The library has been visited by Mr. John Adams Lowe, field agent for the Commission, and by Miss E. Louise Jones, general secretary, Boston. A dictionary stand has been placed in the library through their influence. The librarian was favored in attending a conference of library workers at Simmons College, Boston, July 25-27, inclusive, the Commission paying all charges. Other favors are promised.

A more extended use of the library is urged.

Report of the Supervisor of Music

Miss Leanora E. Taft, Superintendent of Schools:—

Having found the work of music supervision in the Hampden schools to be well organized, I have continued the established method with slight modifications.

The instruction is largely individual. Sight reading, or sight singing, is made the basis of the study. The knowledge of the keys, key signatures, phrases, and rhythm are the technicalities belonging to the sight work.

The prospect of a fruitful year in music is bright, due to the generous support of the teachers, and to the efforts of the pupils during the past brief term.

Respectfully submitted,

BERTHA HEBERT,

Supervisor of Music.

Report of the Supervisor of Drawing

Miss Leanora E. Taft, Superintendent of Schools:—

The outline this year is divided into Representation, Design, Objective, Printing, Construction, and Illustration Work.

It is not so many years since the art training of our public schools was of a character that had no definite application in view. Children were taught to draw circles, squares, diagonals, and to reproduce their impressions of still-life objects merely to train their eyes and fingers for whatever future application their ability to draw might fit them. But there was no attempt to guide their artistic efforts toward channels that would definitely develop in the individual instincts that would be applicable to certain different trades or occupations. It was merely a case of the study of art for art's sake. Ability to draw is important as a means to an end; it should not be considered as an end in itself. The outline this year forms an admirable basis for later definite art training along professional lines; but it is in the general application of art knowledge that the theory of present-day art training finds its greatest value. It is important that those who can learn to draw should be taught how to draw, but of the thousands who study, the large majority, perhaps, will never be able to register any particular advance in the art fields. In the years to come these school children who do not become artists will be able to make use of their art training in the purchase of furnishings, or clothing, and in business enterprises, reflecting an elevation of taste and a broadening of art appreciation.

Respectfully submitted,

HERMINE T. COWLES,

Supervisor of Manual Arts.

The pupils of the Hampden schools are showing commendable ambition to avail themselves of the excellent opportunity now offered to acquire a high school education. This has resulted in a surprising increase in the number of our high school pupils. Two years ago the Town had only 9 high school pupils. Now it has 29, and it seems likely that next fall it may have as many as 40. The State reimburses the Town for all of the tuition, and for at least half of the expense of transportation, but the Town is obliged to advance the money.

No appropriation has thus far been made by the Town for high school expenses, and during the past year the Town has been unable to pay tuition bills promptly, from lack of funds.

If the Town raises by taxation and expends for the support of its schools, an amount equal to $5 per thousand on its valuation, it is entitled to receive reimbursement from the State for the full amount of the expense of transporting high school pupils. For this reason, as well as for other good reasons, it would seem to be a wise policy to make liberal appropriations for the schools.

More blackboards are needed in the Center School. New stoves are needed in the West Side School, and in the Scantic School.

Your Committee recommend the following appropriations for school purposes the ensuing year:—
