REPORT
OF THE
SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS
OF THE
TOWN OF HAMPDEN

1921

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

---

To the School Committee of Hampden:

Gentlemen:—Herewith is submitted for your consideration my report as superintendent of schools for the year ending December 31, 1921. The new enterprise in the schools during the year has been the physical welfare work. I will discuss it briefly under two headings:

PUBLIC SCHOOL NURSE. At the last session of the General Court a law was passed providing for the appointment of nurses in the public schools. Accordingly, the joint committee of this district met and elected a public school nurse, and fixed her salary at $2,300 with the agreement that she should defray her transportation charges by automobile. It was agreed that she should give two twentieths of her time to the town of Hampden, four twentieths to the town of Longmeadow, and seven twentieths to each of the towns of East Longmeadow and Wilbraham. The fears expressed by some that a public school nurse would not find enough to do to keep her busy were immediately shown to be groundless. She is crowded with work all the time, and the opinion is now finding expression that the district should be divided and two nurses employed. She has done much to promote the physical well-being of the children in the public schools by warring against unhygienic conditions, adenoids, enlarged tonsils, poor teeth, malnutrition, tuberculosis, and so on. Without attempting to give a detailed table showing the defects and diseases which she has found and attacked in the schools, I will call attention to one fact. Ten children carrying temperatures have been found who, when examined under the direction of the Westfield Sanatorium, proved to have tuberculosis either in an incipient or moderately advanced stage. Probably some of these children would have recovered had the infection not been discovered, but in other cases the disease doubtless would have progressed and proved fatal. This one service alone in my opinion has more than justified the expense incurred in the employment of a school nurse.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES, VACCINATION. There has been at times some misunderstanding over the exclusion from school of children from households in which there is contagious disease. State law provides that no child who is a member of a household in which a person is ill with any infectious or contagious disease, or of a household exposed to such contagions from another household, shall attend any public school until the teacher of the school has been furnished with a certificate from the board of health or from the attending physician stating that danger of conveying such disease by such child has passed. As will be seen from the above, the responsibility of determining when a child excluded because of contagious disease shall return to school rests, not with the school committee or the teacher, but with the board of health or the attending physician. The teacher must not readmit the child until the certificate required by law is furnished. A difficulty sometimes arises in that a child may be absent because of contagious disease and no physician be employed to attend him. In such a case it may happen that no report is made to the board of health as the law requires, and that no physician nor the board of health is acquainted with the case and so in a position to give the child a certificate to return to school. The difficulty is obviously not for the school department but for the parent of the child to solve.

The law also provides that a child who has not been vaccinated shall not be admitted to a public school except upon presentation of a certificate signed by a regular practicing physician that he is not a fit subject for vaccination. The committee has voted to follow in this matter the practice of the city of Springfield and to provide for the vaccination at school by the school physician of all unvaccinated children whose parents request that this be done. As the vaccine points are furnished by the State Board of Health without cost to the town, the expense of this procedure to the town will not be heavy. It is believed that this practice will do away with a certain amount of friction with parents and loss of time in school by children.

From the very nature of the case the benefits of public health service extend through lifetimes and especially in small towns cannot be reduced to dollars and cents. Red Cross statistical experts have recently given out a statement that in the city of New York in 1910 persons died at an average age of 35, and that in 1920 this had been advanced to 39 years. When such an advance based on a population of five million souls is made in ten years, it cannot be attributed to accident or good luck. I hold that it is explained by the public health measures put into operation during the last ten years. Whatever these measures may have cost in money, their expense has been slight compared to the number of years of life gained to the citizens of New York. In the same way, but not so easily demonstrable in our towns because the elements of accident and luck are a larger factor in a small group, the public school nurse is adding years to the lives of the citizens of this district.

OUR HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS. The town of Hampden has over thirty boys and girls in the Springfield high schools. This is a very large number for a town of its population. The town may well be proud of the records which its high school pupils are making. Of the ten children who graduated from our eighth grade last June and entered the Forest Park Junior III class last September, the following six have been on the honor roll:

Eunice Bartlett	Holton Pease
Beatrice Brennan	Roderick Root
Eleanor Hyde (Maximum Honors)	Dorothy Temple

When six of ten graduates coming from three different buildings and entering a new school system with whose ways they are not familiar secure a place on the honor roll during the first term of their attendance, neither the work of the teachers nor the ability of the pupils can be questioned.

The following senior high school pupils have also been on the honor roll this year:—
